

The United States and England.
The speeches of M. Kossuth and Hon. R. J. Walker, which are being extensively published in the journals of the day, will be read with profound interest. We regard them as the springs of great events that will ere long astonish the world.

Until within the last year or two the feeling which this country entertained towards England was any thing but amicable. The war of the Revolution, and the irritating causes which led to it, necessarily produced a wide breach between the mother and the daughter, which the subsequent war, with numerous territorial and commercial causes of controversy, served to keep alive. But the settlement of the Maine and Oregon boundary disputes, with the "Right of Search" question, has at length put an end to the last legitimate ground of quarrel between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. Henceforth the affinities of race, language, religion and institutions must bring them closer and closer, until the difference between them shall not be greater than that which separates the several States of this Union.

England, under Tory rule, has been kept in a false position. If the energy and power of that great, brave, and free people have been too often enlisted, in former contests, on the side of despotism, it was because the rotten-borough Parliaments failed to reflect the will of the people. The passage of the reform bill in 1832 has popularized the government to a considerable extent; and hence it is that we now find that government the champion of popular liberty in Europe. The position is a noble one, and cannot fail to win the admiration and sympathy of the American people; and the response to it by Mr. Walker will find an echo in millions of American hearts.

We should be the last to sanction a crusade for the propagation of liberty or republicanism. We recognize the right of nations to conduct their internal affairs as they please; and if they choose to render a willing obedience to oppressive laws and wicked rulers, we may pity them, but a regard for the great law of peace would constrain us to refrain from forcing freedom upon them.

In yielding our assent to the principles laid down by M. Kossuth and Mr. Walker, we disclaim, in advance, the imputation of being propagandists. Their language will warrant no such inference; and so far from it, the former expressly disclaims it. What M. Kossuth and Mr. Walker propose is, a league of constitutional governments to arrest the encroachments of despotism. Russia, a great, consolidated, stable, military despotism—the greatest, perhaps, which the world has ever seen—habitually intermeddles in the local affairs of its weaker neighbors, and prescribes to them laws and institutions. This spirit of encroachment is on the increase. Its giant strides are only equalled by the advancing power and numbers of the Russian empire; and unless arrested by an equal or greater force, it threatens to overthrow the liberties of Europe. The last century saw the partition of Poland; and we of the present have witnessed the melancholy spectacle of a brave people, who had achieved liberty in many a hard-fought battle, re-subjugated by the colossal power of Russia as an act of grace to his brother tyrant of Austria. To oppose this alliance of despots by an alliance of free nations or of morality. So far from it, we should regard them as recreant to duty and to humanity if they would fold their arms and await the issue of events without an effort to direct them.

The visit of M. Kossuth to England and the United States will be attended with immense consequences, not merely to his own oppressed land, but to every down-trodden nation in Europe. An interest and enthusiasm will be excited which will kindle hope in the breasts of the millions of Germany, France, Austria, and Italy, who are groaning under despotic sway. The people of Austria, Prussia, and all Germany detest their tyrants, who are leagued with Russia, and they only wait for a fitting opportunity to repeat the revolutionary measures of 1848, with the subsequent experience of kingly treachery and perfidy to direct their future course.

The London News pronounces the speech of Mr. Walker one of the most remarkable for eloquence and depth of meaning which the editor had heard for many years. But the speech of M. Kossuth, if we reflect that he spoke in a language foreign and unfamiliar to him, must be regarded as still more remarkable for eloquence and power. It is no less characterized by wisdom and political sagacity than by glowing eloquence and pathos. Surrounded as the speaker was by enthusiastic admirers, whose rapturous applause might seem to intoxicate the wisest head, he never forgets himself, never gives utterance to one injudicious remark which he could wish to recall. He disclaims the idea of asking England or America to fight the battles of Hungary. The people of that oppressed country are capable of achieving their freedom single-handed, if left to a contest with their tyrannical rulers. All they desire is that the despot of Russia shall not be permitted to interfere in a second contest.

Kossuth is a true hero. It is not that he has fought bravely, and risked his life on the battlefield; but he has incurred the hazards of battle and the privations of the camp for the sake of liberty. No mercenary love of glory, or power, or money, has prompted him; but he has risked all and hazarded all for the sake of others. He has fought the battles of right against wrong—of the poor and oppressed against the oppressor. It is this that makes him a true hero, and that causes the hearts of the nations to yearn towards him. His enemies fought as hard—perhaps as bravely; but they fought for the wrong, and their aim was to win the smiles of kings. They received their reward, but along with it the execration of mankind.

All honor to Kossuth! His name will descend to the latest posterity, as a hero, a patriot, and a statesman. We honor him, not because he has fought bravely, but because he has been true to a noble cause—because he has devoted great talents, which might have procured him the smiles of princes, to the cause of civil and religious liberty.

Jackson Democratic Association.

This body, comprising the collective wisdom, patriotism, disinterestedness and benevolence of the city of Washington, assembled at Apollo Hall last night, and proceeded to business in pretty good order, as we felt convinced they would as soon they found we were giving them the light of our countenance and counsel.

The important business of the occasion was announced to be the election of an Executive Committee; whereupon one Mr. W. W. Curran, a small, sharp, gentlemanly-looking man, with a light voice and an emphatic style of oratory, proposed that the prescriptions of the constitution be set aside, and that Gen. Robert Armstrong, of the Union newspaper, be elected instantaneously and by acclamation. This was vehemently objected to and voted down, when Mr. Curran indignantly withdrew from before the Association the name of Gen. A., but the more quiet friends of that excellent gentleman proceeded forthwith and in due form to elect him a member of the said Executive Committee, which was organized by the choice of the following gentlemen, viz: Gen. J. McCalla, Thos. Thornley, Wm. A. Hacker, Daniel Radcliff, Gen. Robt. Armstrong, Phil. Barton Key, and B. B. French.

We will here mention as worthy of remark, that although our worthy friend Capt. Robinson was present, and evidently interested in the proceedings, he made no speech, and the fungi escaped unscathed!

Pamphlets.
We have received from the press of the Upper Marlboro' Gazette a very acceptable pamphlet, containing the proceedings of the Prince Georges' County Agricultural Society at its eleventh annual meeting, and the address of Col. George W. Hughes, delivered on that occasion.

We also return our thanks to JOHN L. DORSEY, esq., of Md., for a copy of one of the most invaluable productions that has proceeded from the press during the present year. It is the "Documentary History of Slavery in the United States." This pamphlet was compiled by Mr. Dorsey, and exhibits in a striking manner the accuracy, patience and industry in investigation, and erudition, for which he has ever been remarkable. We understand Mr. D. is soon to receive a desirable position under the Government, and are well assured that, while his many friends will be gratified therewith, the public interests will profit by the services of a most efficient officer.

THE PRESIDENCY.—The Chillicothe (O.) Advertiser, printed at the home of ex-Senator Allen, has the name of that distinguished gentleman at its mast-head as a candidate for the Presidency; but the Pittsburg Post remarks that, although Mr. Allen possesses all the talents requisite to fill the presidential chair with distinguished honor, his time has not yet arrived—that Pennsylvania will claim the next President; and the Post thinks its Democratic brethren throughout the country are disposed to unite with it most heartily in elevating the distinguished statesman, James Buchanan, to the place filled by Jefferson, Madison, Jackson, and Polk.

MR. DISNEY, OF OHIO.—Will this gentleman be elected Speaker? We do not know, but everybody is talking of the affair as a future probability. We have no personal acquaintance with him, yet a very favorable impression in regard to him in all points. He is a Democrat, to be sure, but perhaps sins ignorantly in that! He is also an anti-abolitionist. It is a part of his history, too, that he strenuously and eloquently advocated the annexation of Texas, having freely contributed of his means to aid her in achieving her independence. He is a man of indefatigable industry, great energy of character, and superior abilities—and glances upward in his progress through the world of politics. Will he ascend to where his friends now wish to place him? That is the question of the day.

The Great Ten-Pounder.

The Expounder of the Constitution—Daniel Webster—the statesman of his country and age—is not to be President, and it is not pretty in his friends to tantalize him with the idea that he is. Even the New York Herald is giving him the cold shoulder most emphatically, and jeers and squibs him as though it had never thought of him in connexion with that high office. It is both historic and prophetic in the following:

"MR. WEBSTER AND THE SPANISH DIFFICULTY.—According to the private advice of the North American—probably from the war correspondent of Mr. Clayton in his day—we may expect peace. Mr. Webster has written a long and satisfactory letter to Mr. Calderon, which will, doubtless, settle the hash. Some concessions are evidently made, not at first intended by our premier. It appears, also, that Prussia had a finger in the pie, with Great Britain and France, in certain representations of what they intended to do for the future protection of Cuba. It is a great pity that Russia and Austria were not also included in this league of enforcing upon the United States the doctrine of non-interference in the affairs of Cuba. And we are sorry the Pope was overlooked. He might have had some influence with Mr. Webster. But let us, like honest Sancho, be thankful. Mr. Webster will settle the business amicably, without the intervention of the allied powers. He has everything out and dried for it. All the correspondence will be laid before Congress, including the long letter to Mr. Calderon, which it is expected will be a smasher for the Presidency. And then it is understood that Mr. Webster will resign, and take a pilgrimage, by the inland route, to New Orleans, to see how the land lies with the Union party down in that direction, and likely to investigate the Florida claims. He will most likely return by way of the Mississippi to St. Louis, and thence by the most populous route to New York. At the conclusion of this patriotic excursion, the Whigs will probably meet in convention and nominate General Scott."

The papers are publishing a list of bequests to the amount of many thousands of dollars, to various religious societies, made by a wealthy citizen, recently deceased. This is all well enough, as far as it goes, but when the same papers are filled with accounts of the suffering poor dying daily from starvation in the same city, it cannot help thinking that the money might have been better applied.—Williamsburg (N. Y.) Ind. Press.

Yes, sir, of course; and the farmer who labors diligently to repair the damage occasioned by the periodic overflowing of his farm is much wiser than he who constructs a dam and effectually turns the current from his lands. Is it not so, thou wise one?

IMMENSE BUSINESS OF THE ERIC CANAL.—A

New York paper (we know not which) gives us some valuable facts tending to convey a clear idea of the vastness of this great highway of commerce. "If," it says, "the boats of the Erie Canal—five thousand and fifteen in number—were placed in line, they would reach from Albany to Utica, a distance of eighty-three miles. The distance achieved by this enormous fleet, in one year, is eleven millions of miles—equal to three thousand six hundred voyages across the Atlantic—transporting more than three millions of tons, which is twenty-six times the quantity carried by the railroads which run along the banks of the canal. The daily business of the canal, twenty thousand tons, would require two thousand cars, loaded to their utmost capacity. The value, in money, of the property transported by the canal in 1850, was one hundred and fifty-six millions of dollars."

Major Buck, of the Post Office Department, is at Savannah. He and his wife and child escaped from the wreck of the schooner Tybee, on the coast of Georgia, a short time since, after suffering many hardships. Major B. was but a feeble invalid on his departure from this city three weeks ago; but he says that he is no worse since his exposure and privations. Mrs. Buck and her infant are not seriously unwell.

THE REV. THEODORE MATHEW.—We are informed by a respectable gentleman that some of the charges made against this gentleman have been refuted, and that it is believed the others can be successfully. We shall be glad to be furnished with the evidence on the subject; and, at least until the facts are satisfactorily confirmed, shall withhold the strictures we have received for publication. They are just if he is guilty, and infamous if he is innocent.

The story commenced yesterday will be resumed to-morrow, and finished without another interruption.

Mr. Z. W. McKnew, of this city, who is to be a candidate for Doorkeeper to the House of Representatives, is strongly backed, and if elected will perform his whole duty.

EATEN BY CANNIBALS.—The ship Alexander Long arrived at Tahiti, Sandwich Islands, on the 26th of August, with officers and crew of the French corvette Alcmene, which was lost on the west coast of New Zealand, about the middle of June. Fifteen men were lost while getting ashore, and she also lost two officers and eleven men, who were killed and eaten by the cannibals in New Caledonia.

ALEXANDRIA.—William D. Massey was last night nominated for the Assembly, by a large majority of the Whigs, over Arthur Taylor. The Whig nomination is election. Mr. Massey has been heretofore tried, and found worthy.

European News.

We yesterday announced the arrival of the Asia at New York. She left Liverpool on the 8th inst., at 10 a. m.

Kossuth would certainly leave in the Washington on the 14th for New York. He had an interview with Mazzini on the 4th. Kossuth was still received with the warmest attention. A committee had been appointed to raise a Kossuth fund. A correspondence had taken place between the British and Austrian governments relative to Kossuth's reception. Lord Palmerston replied that his government had nothing to do with the matter. Kossuth on the 3d addressed a large meeting of the working men in Copenhagen Fields, in which he eulogized England and America, and denounced Austria and Russia. His last address to the English people will be delivered on Thursday. The political news from France is interesting. The Assembly met on the 4th, and re-elected M. Dupin president. The message of Louis Napoleon was violently attacked, and its sentiments treated with incredulity and irony. The electoral law proposed by the president is at most a complete return to the old law, as drawn up by the Constituent Assembly. The Journal des Debats and the organs of the Legitimists and Orleanists are particularly severe on the president, and represent the effect of his message on the Assembly as most deplorable.

The president represents the financial condition of the country as unfavorable, and asserts that a vast demagogical conspiracy exists not only in that country but throughout Europe, the object of which is the overthrow of society as at present constituted. Louis Napoleon describes himself as free from personal interest, a firm friend of order, and an honorable observer of his oath.

The President states that agriculture and commerce are in a flourishing condition. LIVERPOOL MARKETS.—Cotton has advanced 1d., with an active demand. Flour had advanced 6d. on better qualities. Wheat had advanced 1d. Corn was dull and unchanged. Consols had advanced to 98. Money was easy. Bullion in the bank had increased £60,000. At Manchester prices were firmer, with a good business.

Another account of the market states that the advance in cotton was mostly in middling qualities. The sales of Friday were 10,000 bales at firm prices. Western flour is quoted at 17s. 6d., and Ohio flour at 18s. 6d. to 19s. 6d.; yellow corn, 26s. to 26s. 6d.; white, 29s. to 29s. 6d. Coffee is dull. Rice is active at advanced rates. Molasses is unchanged, but more inquired for. Sugar is 6d. to 1s. lower, with a good business. Hemp is unchanged.

The two principal witnesses against the Christiana rioters have been allowed to escape from Moyamensing Prison in Philadelphia. [Marlboro' (Md.) Advocate.]

"Have been allowed to escape!" Pie, Mr. Advocate, how could you?

Colonel Bragg's Battery of Flying Artillery, which has such noble service at the battle of Buena Vista, had a drill parade at Jefferson Barracks on the 9th instant, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators. The company now consists of seventy effective men; and of these, only three—First Sergeant Swartwout, Sergeant Herron, and Musician Kethery—were with him in Mexico. They were in every battle with General Taylor, and the first named was wounded twice.

Great Medical Discovery!

DR. J. S. ROSE'S NERVOUS CORDIAL.
FOR ALL NERVOUS CONDITIONS OF THE SYSTEM.—I first discovered this preparation in 1840, since which time I have found but little difficulty in curing most NERVOUS DISEASES, but very recently I have added an ingredient which acts like magic in rendering my NERVOUS CORDIAL far more certain in curing Nervous Tremor of the Muscles, Shaking of the Head, Palpitation, Flatulency, Heart-burn, the Dolor, or Pain in the Head, with Tickings of the Muscles or Flesh, Wakefulness, Heart Disease, Neuralgia, and for the mind or body, affected by care, labor or study. This truly wonderful Medicine, from its peculiar happy effect in allaying the most violent Nervous affections, and completely eradicating them from the system, may justly be termed the greatest discovery in the science of Medicine. It subdues and cures all the various NERVOUS Disorders which the most profound medical skill has hitherto had no control. It is a grand restorer in building up a weak constitution, already worn down by disease and debilitated by other Medicine. Its invigorating properties act like a charm, and its beneficial effects are almost marvellous. The weak, the nervous, and those suffering with constant pains and uneasiness, are frequently cured by using a single bottle.

J. S. ROSE, M. D., Philadelphia.
Price 50 cents. For sale by Z. D. Gilman, Samuel Butt, Charles Still & Co., J. F. Callan, and 20—11

GREAT CURE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS.

DR. J. S. ROSE'S EXPECTORANT OR COUGH SYRUP.
This is the most valuable Cough Syrup, I have ever known. It is a certain cure, if attended to in time. It allays irritation of the Lungs, removes all Bronchial affections, and is a certain cure for a sudden cold, accompanied with cough, croup, and whooping cough. The great demand for this medicine in Philadelphia and elsewhere is the strongest evidence, that the thousands who are using it will testify, of its superiority over every other cough preparation. Price only 50 cents per bottle. All of Dr. Rose's valuable Family Medicines are for sale by Z. D. Gilman, Samuel Butt, Charles Still & Co., J. F. Callan, and 20—11

SUCCESS—NO SUCCESS NO PAY!

THE SUBSCRIBER deems this basis of action proper, and often convenient for suitors and claimants, in cases where the claimant desires to place in a profession as Attorney and Counselor at Law, embracing all the Courts, Departments, Pension and Patent Offices, Congress, &c.

Claims from foreign countries and the western shores of the Pacific will be promptly and faithfully attended to, as well as those nearer the seat of Government.

Although not desirable to him, he will, if required, prepare Deeds, Bonds of Trust, and other instruments, with that legal precision so important in land titles. All letters on business to be post-paid. ESTEVAN YANES, Northwest cor. 9th and H sts. Nov. 19—11
